T&N Children's Publishing, Inc. announced today that it has sold its book publishing program to Cooper Square Publishing, LLC, the new joint venture created by The Rowman & Littlefield Publishing Group, Inc. of Lanham, Maryland. T&N's imprints, Two-Can Publishing and NorthWord Books for Young Readers, are included in the sale which closed today. The purchase price was not disclosed. The transaction was initiated and facilitated by Cross River Publishing Consultants, Katonah, New York.

Two-Can Publishing is a children's publisher for children from birth through age 12. Two-Can's books seek to entertain and educate kids on science, history and arts and crafts. Many of Two-Can's books are also available in Spanish language editions.

Since 1989, NorthWord has published books on animals and nature for children, helping to educate them about the world around them. The growing list of NorthWord Books for Young Readers includes picture books and non-fiction nature and wildlife books in interactive formats.

Effective immediately, order fulfillment and distribution will be handled by Rowman & Littlefield's sister company, National Book Network, Inc. (NBN) in Blue Ridge Summit, Pennsylvania. T&N will process orders until the end of business today. Beginning Monday, all orders and returns should be sent to NBN.

Jimmy McGuire, President of T&N Children's Publishing, commented, "We are excited to have found a buyer such as Cooper Square who will be able to grow and expand the visibility of the Two-Can and NorthWord imprints."
